Bird Dioramas 100 Years Old

The Charles D. Hubbard dioramas at the L.C. Bates Museum have been in display since 1924. The Hubbard dioramas are one of the oldest collections of dioramas in the United States. The collection includes dioramas of Maine wildlife, such as birds, mammals, and reptiles. Some of the dioramas are over 100 years old and have been preserved for visitors to enjoy. The dioramas are named after Charles D. Hubbard, an Impressionist Artist who created the dioramas in the early 20th century.

Birds are a popular attraction for museum visitors. The dioramas feature birds from various habitats, such as forests, streams, and coastal areas. Some of the birds included are snowy owls, bald eagles, and moose. The dioramas are located in the museum's art galleries, which feature a collection of local and regional art and photography.

Visitors can explore the dioramas at their own pace, or they can take a guided tour of the museum. The museum offers a variety of programs for families, schools, and individuals, including workshops, lectures, and tours. The museum also has a gift shop where visitors can purchase books, postcards, and other souvenirs.

The L.C. Bates Museum is located in Hinckley, Maine, and is open to the public year-round. The museum is closed on major holidays, such as Thanksgiving and Christmas. The museum is a great place to learn about the natural history of Maine and the art of Charles D. Hubbard.

January 2024 Events and Programs

Bird Sanctuary Tour

On Saturday, January 6th, 10 AM, take a guided tour of the bird sanctuary. This tour is perfect for bird enthusiasts or anyone interested in learning about the local wildlife. Participants will see various species of birds, including snowy owls and bald eagles. The tour includes a visit to the bird feeding area and an opportunity to watch the birds in action. Please call or email the museum for more information.

Museum Outside Door

On Saturday, January 13th, 10 AM, the L.C. Bates Museum will open its doors to the public. Visitors can explore the museum and learn about the local history and culture. The museum's galleries feature a collection of local and regional art, photography, and history. The event is free and open to the public. Please call or email the museum for more information.

New Fall Time Educators Needed

The museum is seeking educators to lead tours and programs for schools and community groups. Educators will receive training and support to create engaging and educational programs for students. The museum offers a variety of programs for families, schools, and individuals, including workshops, lectures, and tours. Please call or email the museum for more information.

Bird Dioramas 100 Years Old

On Saturday, January 20th, 10 AM, learn about the history of the Charles D. Hubbard dioramas. The dioramas are one of the oldest collections of dioramas in the United States. The exhibit features dioramas of Maine wildlife, such as birds, mammals, and reptiles. Some of the dioramas are over 100 years old and have been preserved for visitors to enjoy. The event includes a guided tour of the exhibit. Please call or email the museum for more information.

Museum Programs and Tours

The L.C. Bates Museum offers a variety of programs and tours for families, schools, and individuals. The museum's programs and tours include guided tours, workshops, lectures, and other educational activities. The museum is a great place to learn about the natural history of Maine and the art of Charles D. Hubbard. Please call or email the museum for more information.

Museum Outside Door

On Saturday, January 27th, 10 AM, the L.C. Bates Museum will open its doors to the public. Visitors can explore the museum and learn about the local history and culture. The museum's galleries feature a collection of local and regional art, photography, and history. The event is free and open to the public. Please call or email the museum for more information.

January 2024 Events and Programs

Bird Sanctuary Tour

On Saturday, January 6th, 10 AM, take a guided tour of the bird sanctuary. This tour is perfect for bird enthusiasts or anyone interested in learning about the local wildlife. Participants will see various species of birds, including snowy owls and bald eagles. The tour includes a visit to the bird feeding area and an opportunity to watch the birds in action. Please call or email the museum for more information.

Museum Outside Door

On Saturday, January 13th, 10 AM, the L.C. Bates Museum will open its doors to the public. Visitors can explore the museum and learn about the local history and culture. The museum's galleries feature a collection of local and regional art, photography, and history. The event is free and open to the public. Please call or email the museum for more information.

New Fall Time Educators Needed

The museum is seeking educators to lead tours and programs for schools and community groups. Educators will receive training and support to create engaging and educational programs for students. The museum offers a variety of programs for families, schools, and individuals, including workshops, lectures, and tours. Please call or email the museum for more information.

Bird Dioramas 100 Years Old

On Saturday, January 20th, 10 AM, learn about the history of the Charles D. Hubbard dioramas. The dioramas are one of the oldest collections of dioramas in the United States. The exhibit features dioramas of Maine wildlife, such as birds, mammals, and reptiles. Some of the dioramas are over 100 years old and have been preserved for visitors to enjoy. The event includes a guided tour of the exhibit. Please call or email the museum for more information.

Museum Programs and Tours

The L.C. Bates Museum offers a variety of programs and tours for families, schools, and individuals. The museum's programs and tours include guided tours, workshops, lectures, and other educational activities. The museum is a great place to learn about the natural history of Maine and the art of Charles D. Hubbard. Please call or email the museum for more information.

Museum Outside Door

On Saturday, January 27th, 10 AM, the L.C. Bates Museum will open its doors to the public. Visitors can explore the museum and learn about the local history and culture. The museum's galleries feature a collection of local and regional art, photography, and history. The event is free and open to the public. Please call or email the museum for more information.